1 Identify two distinct feminist approaches. [2]

2 Explain a Marxist feminist account of unpaid care. [3]

3 Name the approach that foregrounds patriarchy. [1]

Evidence and application

Fictional policy discussion: A college employer proposes predictable hours and equal access to promotion. A campaign seeks publicly organised affordable care and a fairer distribution of unpaid work. A women's organisation asks who controls money and whose decisions dominate at home. A fourth speaker asks whether reforms reach women facing racialised job barriers or inaccessible services. These are proposals for analysis, not descriptions of existing legal rights.

4 Explain two different feminist emphases in the policy discussion. [4]

5 Why can the same proposal be supported for different reasons? [2]

6 Explain how an intersectional question could improve policy evaluation. [3]
