Read the three passages, then answer. Use fictional examples; no external research or personal disclosure is required.

Smart: connected lives

Carol Smart's personal life perspective examines how people remain connected through memories, emotions, obligations and shared histories. It questions accounts that treat each person as freely constructing a life independently. Connections can be supportive, difficult or ambivalent. Investigating what a relationship means to participants does not require assuming that all attachments are freely chosen or beneficial.

Two connected concepts

Personal life: A perspective examining meaningful relationships, attachments and lived connections. Connectedness: The ways a person's life is bound up with other people.

A question to bring

Explain how connectedness challenges an isolated-individual account. People's decisions are bound up with obligations, memories and other people's lives. A choice cannot be understood solely as a preference made by a detached individual.

F1

Summarise the main idea in the first passage in one or two sentences.

F2

Define personal life and give an original fictional example.
