Evidence and application

Fictional care map: Nia lives with her parent Arun and Arun's partner Beth. Beth is described as Nia's step-parent. Nia also spends time with her other parent, Lee, at a nearby address. Grandparent Asha lives separately and helps with school travel; Arun arranges Asha's shopping when needed. Beth's changing work shifts sometimes require the adults to renegotiate travel. A school form lists only people at Nia's main address. The map describes an invented network, not a representative family.

4 Explain two concepts through precise details in the care map. [4]

5 Why can the two family dimensions overlap? [2]

6 Give a cumulative judgement on household categories using an earlier lesson. [3]
