

L029 Domestic abuse - Workbook

AQA A Level Sociology 7192 • Families & Households • Couples • 90 minutes

Connect & check

Define the core concept and identify one relevant perspective before the new teaching begins.

Focus	Detailed notes
Key terms	domestic abuse, coercive control, power, patriarchy, reporting, hidden crime, victim-blaming, evidence limits
Theory reminder	Feminism: domestic abuse is connected to gendered power and control, not simply individual conflict.; Interactionism: abuse can be hidden through meanings, fear, secrecy and normalisation in everyday life.; Structural approaches: economic dependence, housing, immigration status or care responsibilities can constrain options.
Study focus	Dobash & Dobash; Radical feminist explanations; Evidence and reporting limits; Coercive control framework

Study organiser

Dobash & Dobash: Domestic violence can be understood within patriarchal power relations. Evaluation: Important but must be applied carefully and not treated as the only explanation.

Radical feminist explanations: Violence and coercive control may enforce gendered dominance. Evaluation: Strong on power, but evaluation should consider variation and intersectionality.

Evidence and reporting limits: Police/crime statistics undercount hidden abuse because reporting is shaped by fear, stigma and dependence. Evaluation: Methodological evaluation is central, not optional.

Coercive control framework: Control may involve isolation, monitoring, money, threats and everyday restriction. Evaluation: Helps learners understand abuse beyond incidents of physical violence.
